Dear Caviar:

I am writing to apply to your Software Engineer in Logistics Intellegence position. This May I finished an amazing experience at the University of California, Berkeley.

I have an interest in this position for a variety reasons. I have a strong background in Python, Java, Ruby, and a few other languages. I have also have experience with machine learning algorithms and advanced matrix computations. Moreover, I communicate with my peers effectively and have served as a leader in community service organizations. Finally, one of the biggest reasons I am interested in working with Caviar is my love for difficult problems. In my time at Berkeley, I learned that I love to challenge myself. I switched into a more difficult major, did not hesitate to take demanding classes, and did all I could to demand more of myself. I want to continue to find opportunities to challenge myself after graduation, and I know that working at Caviar will provide that for me.

Please feel free to ask me any questions - my contact information can be found here and on my resume. Also, I am located just across the Bay, so I am just a stone's throw away. Thank you for your consideration and time.

Sincerely yours,

Patrick Yu
